

The 2022 Annual Shipwrights' Lectures

Wednesday 19 October 13.50 at MAST Studios Southampton

Online registration is now open! Please copy and paste the link to apply

<https://www.shipwrights.co.uk/shipwrights-lectures/shipwright-lectures-company-attendees-application-form>

This half day programme of Lectures held in Southampton each year is free to attend. The aim is to inspire and motivate young people engaged in all aspects of the boat design and building industry – an industry occupying a unique international position and which currently represents a £3 billion sector of the UK economy.

An interactive session where James Scott-Anderson from Blue Parameters revisits his challenge from the 2021 Lectures.

Be prepared to be questioned by members of the Team beforehand on what steps you and your Company have taken to improve workplace practices in respect of sustainability.

James Scott Anderson at the 2021 Lectures

Paul Harris Lectures Team member, qualified apprentice, and Project Leader at Maguire Boats will lead a discussion with two Pendennis apprentices and a Boat Building Academy student addressing their careers and future aspirations while also identifying innovations made within their Companies to promote sustainability. Later in the afternoon in a 'Manager's Confessional', speakers will be revealing valuable lessons to be learnt from 'Getting It Right First Time'.

Sally Tooze MD of Willow Boat Painting will talk about a sector of the industry rarely touched upon in previous Lectures where developments in design and build are leading to significant market growth.

Canal boats throwing off their traditional image?

Joe Manning RNLI

Joe Manning, RNLI Process Cell Support Team and active RNLI Crew Member/Engineer will share his experiences and motivation to progress his career from apprentice to qualified EngTech TMIET and beyond.

Regular Lectures contributor Matt Sheahan, Journalist, Video Producer/Broadcaster & TV Commentator will be giving his views on boat design and corporate developments in 2022 and will also look forward to 2023.

Matt Sheahan Planet Sail

Manley Hopkinson Explorer, Inspirational Speaker and Leadership Consultant

The Lectures Team are delighted to welcome back Manley Hopkinson, internationally acclaimed inspirational and motivational speaker who, in his inimitable fashion, will enliven the topic of leadership and no doubt entertain all attendees with anecdotes from his considerable experiences as an explorer and extreme adventurer.